

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computer-implemented method, including storing information regarding a ticket for a remaining portion of an event and/or a ticket option for a remaining portion of an event in a memory device, processing a ticket request and/or a ticket option request for a ticket for a remaining portion of an event and/or a ticket option for a remaining portion of an event, wherein the ticket request and/or ticket option request is processed with a processing device in conjunction with the information stored in the memory device, generating a ticket availability message and/or a ticket option availability message, and transmitting the ticket availability message and/or a ticket option availability message to a communication device associated with an individual.